Executive summary

What your answers show

Functional

Test Profile, your customer journey scores 61 out of 100. The core pieces are in place, but there are gaps costing you enquiries and rebookings every week. Closing them is straightforward work with a fast return.

Your strongest stage is Lead Response at 71/100. The stage costing you most right now is Retention & Re-engagement at 62/100 - which is where this report starts.

Every finding is drawn from what you told us. Nothing here is generic: the gaps are the ones your answers revealed, and the recommendations are ordered by what a fix is worth to you.

At £1,000-£2,500 per client, one extra client a month adds around £19,200 in lifetime value over a year - the bar every recommendation in this report has to clear.

Your top three priorities

Priority 1

Retention & Re-engagement

62/100 · Needs work

Only 36% of your clients are repeat, so most of your income depends on constantly finding new people.

Priority 2

Lead Nurture & Follow-Up

55/100 · Needs work

Your nurture is partly built, so some enquiries get looked after and others don't.

Priority 3

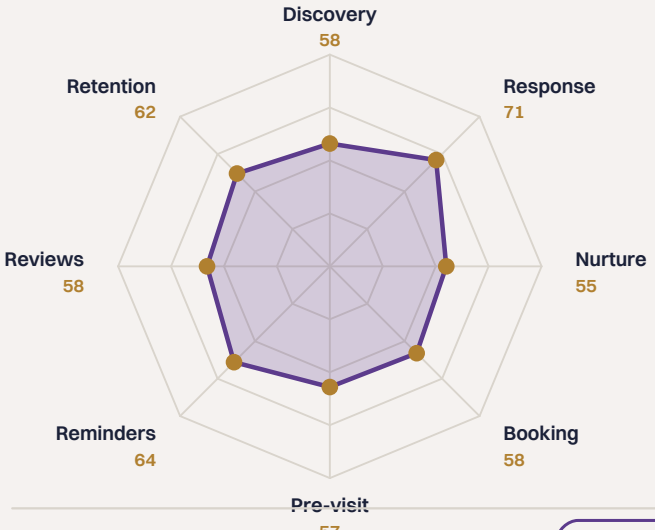

Reminders & No-Show Prevention

64/100 · Needs work

You don't currently know your no-show rate, so the most expensive thing in your diary is happening unmeasured.

All eight stages

Your journey at a glance

How each stage is being run

AUTOMATED — happens without anyone thinking about it

SYSTEMISED — there is a process, but it still needs you

MANUAL — depends on somebody remembering

Manual is under 50, Systemised is 50 to 74, Automated is 75 and over.

Lead Sources & Discovery

SYSTEMISED — 58/100

Your Google profile exists but isn't working hard - it's listed rather than competing.

Lead Response

SYSTEMISED — 71/100

An hour is good, but the first five minutes is where the booking is won - after that, enquiries start shopping around.

Lead Nurture & Follow-Up

SYSTEMISED — 55/100

Your nurture is partly built, so some enquiries get looked after and others don't.

Booking Process

SYSTEMISED — 58/100

A mix of routes means some clients get a smooth booking and others get a conversation - and the ones who need it easiest usually get the slowest route.

Confirmation & Pre-Appointment

SYSTEMISED — 57/100

Paperwork on arrival eats into the time they are paying for, and starts the visit with admin.

Reminders & No-Show Prevention

SYSTEMISED — 64/100

You don't currently know your no-show rate, so the most expensive thing in your diary is happening unmeasured.

Reviews & Reputation

SYSTEMISED — 58/100

Most reviews go unanswered, which makes an otherwise glowing profile look neglected.

Retention & Re-engagement

SYSTEMISED — 62/100

Only 36% of your clients are repeat, so most of your income depends on constantly finding new people.

One number for the next three months

Your 90-day focus

YOUR FOCUS KPI

Repeat client rate

The share of your appointments taken by clients who've been before

TODAY	IN 90 DAYS
36% repeat	60% repeat

Why this number matters most for you

Returning clients cost nothing to win, so this number goes almost straight to profit - and it steadies the quiet weeks.

Clients who come back cost you nothing to win, so this money goes almost straight to profit. It also steadies the quiet weeks, which is what makes a business feel calm rather than hand to mouth.

How this number was chosen

Each of the eight stages owns one number. Retention & Re-engagement scored 62 out of 100, and because it carries more weight in your overall score than most, that gap is costing you more than any other single stage. So the number for this quarter is Repeat client rate. The other priorities below were not picked for being weak on their own. They were picked because the work they need also moves Repeat client rate, so Confirmation & Pre-Appointment and Reviews & Reputation pull in the same direction rather than scattering your effort across eight fronts.

How to measure it

Track the following data: what share of your appointments are taken by somebody who has been to you before, and what share of clients leave with their next appointment already booked.

Where to get it

For the first number, your booking system almost certainly separates new clients from returning ones. Look for a client report, or a customer list with a first-visit date on it. For the second number, count it by hand for a fortnight: every time a client leaves, mark whether they walked out with a date in the diary. That second number moves fastest, because it is a habit rather than a system.

How often to check

The repeat rate once a month. The rebooking tally every fortnight, but only while you are actively working on it.

Priority 1

Retention & Re-engagement

SYSTEMISED 62/100

What's working

- An automated sequence keeps you present between appointments.
- You do reach out to clients who've drifted.

The gaps

- Only 36% of your clients are repeat, so most of your income depends on constantly finding new people.
- Referrals happen by accident rather than because you've made them easy and rewarding.
- You know retention isn't where it should be - which means you're paying to replace clients you could have kept.

What to do

QUICK WIN Pair the sequence with asking before they leave, so the easiest booking happens first.
Fills more of your diary in advance and smooths out quiet weeks.

PROJECT Prompt every client to rebook before they leave, and set up a re-engagement message for anyone who hasn't been back in 10 weeks.
Lifting repeat business from 36% to 56% would meaningfully raise your income without a single new enquiry.

PROJECT Automate it on a 10-week trigger so it happens even in the weeks you're flat out.
Turns an occasional effort into a reliable source of rebookings.

THE NEXT LEVEL · BUILT WITH YOU

Rebooking prompts timed to each treatment's own cycle rather than one blanket reminder, so clients hear from you when they are actually due. Anyone drifting past their window is picked up automatically, and the ones who do come back are asked to bring someone with them.

Tools

Start here

- Ask for the next booking before the client leaves. It costs nothing and it moves fastest.
- A list of everyone who has not been back in three months, worked through by hand once.

The joined-up version

The system knows when each client is due back, asks them before you would have remembered to, and only tells you about the ones who do not answer.

Priority 2

Lead Nurture & Follow-Up

SYSTEMISED 55/100

What's working

- You do chase enquiries, which already puts you ahead of most.
- Three to five touches covers the window where most undecided enquiries make their decision.

The gaps

- Your nurture is partly built, so some enquiries get looked after and others don't.
- Your offer changes depending on the conversation, so there's no consistent reason to book today rather than someday.
- Visitors have to compose a message themselves, which is enough friction that most simply leave.

What to do

PROJECT Automate the first three follow-ups so they go out whether or not you have capacity that week, and keep your manual touch for the ones who reply.

Removes the 'I meant to message them' loss without adding to your workload.

PROJECT Finish the sequence: five emails over two weeks covering what to expect, the result they're after, reviews, common worries and an invitation to book.

Converts the undecided without another conversation from you.

QUICK WIN Choose one standing first-visit offer - a credit against the first invoice, an add-on, or a small saving on the first booking - and use it in every follow-up.

Gives undecided enquiries a deadline, which is usually what converts them.

THE NEXT LEVEL · BUILT WITH YOU

Follow-up that runs itself and knows when to stop. Each enquiry who has not booked gets a sequence shaped around what they asked about, by email, text or the channel they came in on. It stops the moment they book, and the replies that need a person come to you with the thread already read.

Tools

Start here

- Three saved messages: the day after, day three, and day seven. Send them by hand until the pattern is proven.
- A note in the diary each Friday to check who enquired this week and never heard back.

The joined-up version

An enquiry that does not book joins a sequence by itself, the sequence stops the moment they do book, and you only step in when somebody replies.

Priority 3

Reminders & No-Show Prevention

SYSTEMISED 64/100

What's working

- Email reminders are going out automatically.
- You remind clients 3 times before an appointment, which is where the no-show rate really drops.
- Charging for missed appointments protects the value of your time.

The gaps

- You don't currently know your no-show rate, so the most expensive thing in your diary is happening unmeasured.
- Enforcing sometimes teaches clients the policy is negotiable, which quietly increases late cancellations.

What to do

QUICK WIN Add SMS reminders - texts are opened within minutes, emails often aren't opened at all.
SMS reminders typically cut no-shows further than email alone.

QUICK WIN Mark every missed or late-cancelled appointment for the next month. Two minutes a week gives you the number.
You'll see what no-shows are actually costing you, and whether reminders and deposits are working.

QUICK WIN Apply the policy the same way every time, and let the booking confirmation do the explaining so you never have to.
Removes awkward conversations and reduces repeat offenders.

THE NEXT LEVEL · BUILT WITH YOU

Two-way reminders that ask rather than tell. A client confirms or cancels from the message, and a cancellation goes straight to a waitlist that fills the slot from the people most likely to say yes. Repeated no-shows are flagged quietly, so you can decide what to do about them rather than finding out later.

Tools

Start here

- Reminders switched on at 48 and 24 hours in the system you already pay for.
- A cancellation policy written in one short paragraph and shown at the point of booking.

The joined-up version

The reminder asks for a yes or no rather than just telling them, and a no goes straight to the people waiting for a slot.

The plan

Week by week

Everything from the roadmap, in the order to do it. All of it moves Repeat client rate.

1 Phase one

Weeks 1-2

QUICK WIN — Retention

Pair the sequence with asking before they leave, so the easiest booking happens first.

QUICK WIN — Retention

Offer a simple two-way reward - something for the client who refers and something for the friend - and mention it in your follow-up message.

QUICK WIN — Retention

Start by asking for the next booking before they leave, then add a 10-week re-engagement message for anyone who slips through.

2 Phase two

Weeks 3-6

PROJECT — Retention

Prompt every client to rebook before they leave, and set up a re-engagement message for anyone who hasn't been back in 10 weeks.

PROJECT — Retention

Automate it on a 10-week trigger so it happens even in the weeks you're flat out.

QUICK WIN — Nurture

Choose one standing first-visit offer - a credit against the first invoice, an add-on, or a small saving on the first booking - and use it in every follow-up.

3 Phase three

Weeks 7-12

PROJECT — Nurture

Automate the first three follow-ups so they go out whether or not you have capacity that week, and keep your manual touch for the ones who reply.

PROJECT — Nurture

Finish the sequence: five emails over two weeks covering what to expect, the result they're after, reviews, common worries and an invitation to book.

THREE THINGS YOU CAN DO THIS WEEK

- Pair the sequence with asking before they leave, so the easiest booking happens first.
- Offer a simple two-way reward - something for the client who refers and something for the friend - and mention it in your follow-up message.
- Start by asking for the next booking before they leave, then add a 10-week re-engagement message for anyone who slips through.

Next steps

Three ways to close these gaps

Everything in this report is one 90-day cycle: Repeat client rate as the focus, with the priorities that move it. That is exactly how the LEAP sprint runs. You can run it yourself - the real question is how much of it you want to carry alone.

Option 1

Run it yourself

Included

The whole cycle is written out for you to work through in order. Be warned that it is a fair amount of work: three months of building, testing and following up around an already full diary, and the parts you're least sure about are usually the ones that slip.

Option 2

Your top priority, built for you

From £950

We take the gap that's costing you most and build the fix properly, so it runs without you remembering to do it. Any quick wins that sit alongside it are included in the build.

Option 3

LEAP - 90-Day Sprint

From £2,500 a month

The same cycle, built with you across ninety days: your focus KPI, the aligned priorities, fortnightly sessions, and the work shared rather than left to your evenings. Your number gets looked at every two weeks, which is usually what separates a plan that happens from one that doesn't.

About

Tulivo Digital

Jemina Semakula helps service business owners fix the journey between "I'm interested" and "I've booked again". Most of them don't have a marketing problem - they have a journey problem: enquiries that go unanswered, follow-ups that never happen, and clients who simply drift away.

The work is practical: response systems, booking that doesn't lose people, reminders that protect your diary, review engines and retention sequences - built into the business, not handed over as a document.

What we do

- Customer journey diagnostics and implementation
- AI assistants and automated client communications
- Automation and CRM builds for clinics, studios and salons
- Websites and booking journeys designed to convert
- Reputation, retention and referral systems
